Constitution

This lays out the specific aims and objectives of your group, and details all the rules relating to committee structure, election, membership etc. It can be fundamental in sorting out internal disputes, clearing up confusion, and ensuring you are functioning in accordance with EUSA regulations.

Updating
We recommend that societies update their constitutions at least every couple of years, but if the aims of your society have changed, please make sure the constitution is updated as needed. A society’s aims can develop and their constitution should reflect this. If a new society wishes to start up to fill a gap that your society used to fill, then it might not be recognised if your constitution does not reflect that change in your society. On the other hand, if you’re doing something and it’s not in the constitution, there’s every chance a new society will be approved to do the same thing. For this and other purposes such as mediation, EUSA will assume your most up-to-date copy of your constitution to be the one on your profile.

Approval
Your members need to approve any amendments in your constitution at an EGM or AGM. Full details of this process should be laid out in your... constitution.
